Purpose of this document

This explains why a monthly care fee is needed after the website is built and launched and what the business receives for it.

This is not a second build fee. It is the cost of keeping the site secure, online, accurate, and supported while it is in active use.

1. One-time build vs ongoing care

Build (project fee) covers design, development, content setup, and launch. It ends when the site goes live.

Care (monthly) covers keeping it working after launch. It continues while the site is part of daily operations.

Think of it this way: the build fee is like setting up the studio. The care fee is keeping the lights on, the locks working, and the booking schedule accurate so customers can still book when you are busy with clients.

A finished website is not done forever. Prices change. Browsers update. Booking flows break. Security patches are required. And when something fails on a Friday before a busy weekend, someone needs to own the fix.

2. Infrastructure is not the same as care

Modern websites run on layers of technology: hosting, deployment, database, authentication, storage, domain, DNS, SSL, and sometimes email or messaging links.

These platforms provide the foundation. That is where the site lives, how it scales, and where booking data is stored.

They do not provide:

- Updating service prices, hours, or policies on the live site
- Fixing bugs after a browser or software update
- Checking that booking and deposit instructions still work end to end
- Responding when the Book button stops working
- Guarding against security issues in dependencies
- Monitoring that forms, contact links, and pages still behave correctly
- Someone who knows this project when something breaks

Platform fees are rent for tools. Care is professional time and responsibility.

Even when hosting or database tiers start at low or no cost, someone must still own them: renew the domain, watch usage limits, plan upgrades before traffic or data grows, and step in when something fails.

3. Nothing is free: there is always a cost

There is no such thing as a website with zero ongoing cost. The only question is whether you pay in cash, time, or lost opportunity.

If you pay in cash: hosting, domain renewal, database usage, backups, and professional care.

If you pay in time: you or your staff troubleshoot outages, chase down broken links, and figure out why bookings stopped.

If you pay in opportunity: stale prices on the site, a broken booking flow over a weekend, or customers who give up because the site looks outdated or does not work.

Free or low-cost tiers on hosting and database platforms still have limits. Those limits change. Usage caps appear. Paid plans become necessary as the business grows. Domains and DNS still need management every year.

A monthly care fee budgets for that before it becomes an emergency invoice or a quiet loss of bookings no one notices until Monday.

4. What is included: JMD $5,000 / month

This is a lean Care Essential package for a live booking site. It sits within Buzprout's published Care Essential range (JMD $4,000 to $6,000/month) and is sized for a salon that depends on the website for appointments, not a brochure that rarely changes.

Keep the site healthy

- Monitoring that the site loads and key pages work
- Security and dependency updates as needed
- Small bug fixes from normal use
- Checking the booking flow still works end to end
- Domain, DNS, and SSL assistance if something breaks

Business content updates

Reasonable monthly updates for a salon, not a full redesign:

- Price changes (JMD / USD)
- New or removed services
- Opening hours and location wording
- Policy and deposit text updates
- Contact and payment detail corrections
- Minor copy or image swaps

Support and availability

- A clear point of contact for site issues
- Response within 1 to 2 business days for non-critical issues; priority attention for outages when possible
- Guidance when a request is a quick tweak vs a new feature

Infrastructure awareness

- Oversight of hosting, deployment, and database health
 - Alerting when a plan limit may need an upgrade
 - Advice before costs spike unexpectedly

5. What is not included

To keep the monthly fee fair and predictable, these are billed separately or handled directly by the client:

- Full redesign or rebrand
- New major features (online card payments, SMS, staff dashboards, etc.)
- Custom photography or branding packages
- Paid advertising or SEO campaigns
- Third-party invoices (domain renewals, hosting upgrades, database plans, SMS credits), at cost or paid directly by the client
- Emergency after-hours work beyond agreed hours, unless separately scoped

This keeps the retainer from becoming unlimited unpaid development.

6. Why JMD $5,000 makes sense

Running costs (categories, not vendors)

- Domain: Yearly renewal; needs management
- Hosting / deployment: Low cost at first; paid tiers as traffic and features grow
- Database / auth / storage: Low cost at first; paid tiers with usage, backups, and production needs
- Email / DNS / SSL: Occasional fixes and renewals

Even when platform costs stay modest, someone must own them. That ownership is part of care.

Professional time (the real value)

At JMD $5,000/month, this is roughly 1 to 3 hours of specialist care per month, a light retainer, not a large agency contract.

One broken booking weekend can cost the business more than one month of care in lost deposits and appointments. Care is priced to prevent that, not to match server rent line by line.

Risk transfer

Without care: issues wait until someone is free; every fix becomes a rush quote; prices and policies go stale; security updates get skipped.

With care: there is a clear owner; small updates are expected; downtime and booking failures are treated as priority.

7. Why not "just call when something breaks"?

Pay-as-you-go sounds cheaper. It usually costs more and slows everything down:

1. Slow response: no reserved capacity
2. Higher per-fix rates: emergency pricing
3. No proactive updates: the site drifts from real prices and hours
4. Awkward small jobs: a 20-minute price update becomes admin overhead

JMD $5,000/month is the simple option: predictable for the client, sustainable for the team doing the work.

8. Value for this business

For The Beauty Refinery JA, the website is not a brochure. It is part of operations:

- Appointments are booked through the site
- Deposits depend on clear, correct instructions
- Two locations mean content must stay accurate
- Service menus and training prices change

Stale prices or a broken booking flow directly affect revenue and trust. Care protects that.

9. Short wording for the referrer

The build fee covers creating and launching the website.

The monthly fee (JMD $5,000) covers keeping it live, secure, and accurate, including oversight of hosting, database, and domain setup; bug fixes; service and price updates; and a dedicated contact when something breaks.

Platform tools are not the same as care. Hosting and database services run the product; care is the ongoing work and responsibility to keep the booking site reliable.

At JMD $5,000/month this is a light retainer meant to keep things simple. It is not a large support contract. Without it, every update or fix becomes a separate bill and takes longer to resolve.

10. If more care is needed

Care Essential (this package): JMD $5,000/month

Hosting oversight, security and bug fixes, small content and price updates, booking-flow checks. Recommended default.

Care Standard: JMD $8,000 to $12,000/month

Faster response, more monthly change allowance, formal edit hours. For busier studios.

Build-only / ad-hoc (not recommended): $0 monthly

Client accepts hourly rates and slower support; no proactive care.

Use Care Standard only if the business needs more speed or volume. Do not discount Essential into unpaid on-call work.

Bottom line

JMD $5,000/month is not charging for free hosting. It is a small, predictable fee for ownership, updates, and reliability of a live business website after launch.
