Purpose of this document

This explains the monthly care fee for The Beauty Refinery JA once the site and tools are live: what the business receives, why it exists, and how it stays fair.

The project is no longer just a brochure website. It is a working system: online booking, a staff admin dashboard, application intake, and automated client emails. Care is the cost of keeping that system secure, accurate, and supported while the salon uses it every week.

1. What is live (and what care is protecting)

What the business runs on day to day:

- Public website — brand, services, hours, locations, policies, training info
- Online booking — appointments tied to deposits and clear instructions
- Admin dashboard — staff login, bookings overview, applications, insights, team roles
- Application intake — retreat / training forms stored for the team to review
- Email automation — post-appointment thank-you and monthly rebook reminders (with staff overrides)

Care is not “server rent.” It is ownership of that whole stack so bookings, staff tools, and client emails keep working when prices change, browsers update, or something fails before a busy weekend.

2. Infrastructure is not the same as care

The system runs on layers of technology: hosting, deployment, database, authentication, storage, domain, DNS, SSL, and transactional email.

Those platforms provide the foundation. That is where the site lives, how staff sign in, where bookings and applications are stored, and how emails are sent.

They do not provide:

- Updating service prices, hours, or policies on the live site
- Fixing bugs after a browser or software update
- Checking that booking, deposits, admin login, and emails still work end to end
- Responding when the Book button, admin panel, or form stops working
- Guarding against security issues in dependencies
- Monitoring that forms, contact links, and automated emails still behave correctly
- Someone who knows this project when something breaks

Platform fees are rent for tools. Care is professional time and responsibility.

Even when hosting, database, or email tiers start at low or no cost, someone must still own them: renew the domain, watch usage limits, plan upgrades before traffic or email volume grows, and step in when something fails.

3. Nothing is free: there is always a cost

There is no such thing as a live booking and admin system with zero ongoing cost. The only question is whether you pay in cash, time, or lost opportunity.

If you pay in cash: hosting, domain renewal, database usage, email sending, backups, and professional care.

If you pay in time: you or your staff troubleshoot outages, chase broken booking links, reset staff logins, or wonder why clients never got the rebook email.

If you pay in opportunity: stale prices on the site, a broken booking flow over a weekend, applications sitting unseen because the dashboard is down, or customers who give up because the site does not work.

Free or low-cost tiers still have limits. Those limits change. Usage caps appear. Paid plans become necessary as bookings, staff accounts, and emails grow. Domains and DNS still need management every year.

A monthly care fee budgets for that before it becomes an emergency invoice or a quiet loss of bookings no one notices until Monday.

4. What is included: JMD $5,000 / month

This is a lean Care Essential package for a booking- and operations-dependent salon. It sits within Buzprout's published Care Essential range (JMD $4,000 to $6,000/month) and is sized for a business that depends on the website and the admin tools behind it — not a brochure that rarely changes.

Keep the system healthy

- Monitoring that the public site and key pages load
- Checking admin login and core dashboard views still work
- Security and dependency updates as needed
- Small bug fixes from normal use
- End-to-end checks: booking flow, application form submit, and email send path where applicable
- Domain, DNS, and SSL assistance if something breaks

Business content and ops updates

Reasonable monthly updates for a salon, not a full redesign:

- Price changes (JMD / USD)
- New or removed services
- Opening hours and location wording
- Policy and deposit text updates
- Contact and payment detail corrections
- Minor copy or image swaps
- Light guidance for staff using the admin dashboard (e.g. logins, roles, where applications live)

Email and follow-up (once live)

- Oversight that post-appointment and rebook emails are sending as configured
- Help adjusting simple templates or send timing when needed
- Alerting if email volume is approaching plan limits

Support and availability

- A clear point of contact for site and admin issues
- Response within 1 to 2 business days for non-critical issues; priority attention for outages when possible
- Guidance when a request is a quick tweak vs a new feature

Infrastructure awareness

- Oversight of hosting, deployment, database, and email health
 - Alerting when a plan limit may need an upgrade
 - Advice before costs spike unexpectedly

5. What is not included

To keep the monthly fee fair and predictable, these are billed separately or handled directly by the client:

- Full redesign or rebrand
- New major features beyond what is already live (e.g. card payments, SMS, Google Calendar sync, new custom modules)
- Custom photography or branding packages
- Paid advertising or SEO campaigns
- Third-party invoices (domain renewals, hosting upgrades, database plans, email plan upgrades), at cost or paid directly by the client
- Emergency after-hours work beyond agreed hours, unless separately scoped
- Large new forms, deep dashboard rebuilds, or multi-week feature work

This keeps the retainer from becoming unlimited unpaid development. Caring for the admin dashboard and emails is included; building brand-new systems is not.

6. Why JMD $5,000 makes sense

Running costs (categories, not vendors)

- Domain: Yearly renewal; needs management
- Hosting / deployment: Low cost at first; paid tiers as traffic and features grow
- Database / auth / storage: Holds bookings, applications, and staff accounts; paid tiers with usage and backups
- Transactional email: Post-appointment and rebook messages; free tiers have caps; paid tiers as volume grows
- DNS / SSL: Occasional fixes and renewals

Even when platform costs stay modest, someone must own them. That ownership is part of care.

Professional time (the real value)

At JMD $5,000/month, this is roughly 1 to 3 hours of specialist care per month — a light retainer, not a large agency contract.

One broken booking weekend, or a week of missed rebook emails, can cost the business more than one month of care in lost deposits and appointments. Care is priced to prevent that, not to match server rent line by line.

Risk transfer

Without care: issues wait until someone is free; every fix becomes a rush quote; prices and policies go stale; admin access problems pile up; email automation drifts or fails quietly.

With care: there is a clear owner; small updates are expected; downtime, booking failures, and email issues are treated as priority.

7. Why not "just call when something breaks"?

Pay-as-you-go sounds cheaper. It usually costs more and slows everything down:

1. Slow response: no reserved capacity
2. Higher per-fix rates: emergency pricing
3. No proactive updates: the site drifts from real prices and hours
4. Awkward small jobs: a 20-minute price update or staff login reset becomes admin overhead
5. Silent failures: emails and forms can break without anyone noticing until clients complain

JMD $5,000/month is the simple option: predictable for the client, sustainable for the team doing the work.

8. Value for this business

For The Beauty Refinery JA, technology is part of operations:

- Appointments are booked through the site
- Deposits depend on clear, correct instructions
- Two locations mean content must stay accurate
- Service menus and training prices change
- Staff need a working admin dashboard for bookings, applications, and roles
- Automated emails help bring clients back on a monthly cycle

Stale prices, a broken book flow, a locked-out admin, or failed follow-up emails directly affect revenue and trust. Care protects that.

9. Short wording for the referrer

The monthly fee (JMD $5,000) keeps The Beauty Refinery JA's live system working: the public booking site, staff admin dashboard, application intake, and client email follow-ups.

It covers hosting and database oversight, email send health, bug fixes, service and price updates, and a dedicated contact when something breaks.

Platform tools are not the same as care. Hosting, database, and email services run the product; care is the ongoing work and responsibility to keep bookings, staff tools, and client messages reliable.

At JMD $5,000/month this is a light retainer meant to keep things simple. Without it, every update or fix becomes a separate bill and takes longer to resolve.

10. If more care is needed

Care Essential (this package): JMD $5,000/month

System health, booking and admin checks, email oversight, security and bug fixes, small content and price updates. Recommended default while the stack stays at current scope.

Care Standard: JMD $8,000 to $12,000/month

Faster response, more monthly change allowance, formal edit hours. For busier studios or heavier dashboard / email change volume.

Ad-hoc only (not recommended): $0 monthly

Client accepts hourly rates and slower support; no proactive care. Risky once admin tools and automated emails are in daily use.

Use Care Standard only if the business needs more speed or volume. Do not discount Essential into unpaid on-call work.

Bottom line

JMD $5,000/month is not charging for free hosting. It is a small, predictable fee for ownership, updates, and reliability of a live booking site plus the admin dashboard and email follow-ups the salon now depends on.
